Dear County Supervisor,

I am writing to let you know that as a resident of Santa Barbara county, I think our budget needs to focus on improving racial justice and prioritizing humane treatment for justice-involved people in our County. I respectfully but firmly call on you to reallocate our criminal justice budget to advance transformational changes:

Permanently reduce Sheriff's Department funding to support a long term average jail population of approximately 550.

Reduce general funding for our Sheriff's Department by up to $26.7 million and 165 FTEs to bring our Sheriff Department budget in line with comparable counties.

Reduce Sheriff's Department funding for traditional policing that doesn't reduce recidivism. Reallocate funds to community-based diversion and alternatives to jail, including more funds for the Behavioral Wellness Department to provide non-jail alternatives for mental health and addiction needs. Reallocate funds to support transition planning for jail residents returning to our community.

Increase funding for the Public Defender Department to expand holistic advocacy and culturally competent staff to improve advocacy across the racial/ethnic spectrum.

Reallocate funds to County CEO to expand and centralize data collection and analytics. Require Departments to provide evidence-based data for programs to reduce recidivism.

Offer a grant to the Sheriff's Department to expand jail internet and volunteer access - - including the award winning Freedom to Choose program that reduces recidivism.

Rethink plans for $28M to refurbish the South County Jail. Reduce footprint to about 200 jail beds. Repurpose funds to build transitional housing to help stabilize eligible jail residents' re-entry into our community. Build a separate assessment center to screen and divert those who are appropriate for community-based alternatives.

Fund seed money to study a possible Civilian Oversight Commission to help assure Sheriff Department transparency and accountability, and deter police misconduct.

Transformational change requires courage. I will watch for you to vote for big change now.

Sincerely,

Megan Eales Monroe

Dear Chair Nelson and Supervisors Hart, Hartmann, Lavagnino, and Williams:

Thank you for the time and energy that you are putting into developing a 2021-2022 budget and for the opportunity to share my thoughts - particularly on the criminal justice budget.

While I've spent most of my career working on environmental issues, one of my first internships in law school was with a Public Defender in juvenile justice. I could see then that the punitive approach did not address the social problems young people face. In this past year, I've realized how little progress we have made in 50+ years to transform an unjust, expensive, and ineffective system.

Our community needs a restorative justice system that treats those accused of crimes with humanity. We need instead to provide medical treatment and behavioral wellness. We need to address poverty and homelessness. I urge you to use the KPMG recommendations to reallocate funds and reduce long-term costs of an inhumane system.

In 2019-2020, the Sheriff's budget was already $26.7 million above comparable counties. At that time it was just under $155 million. Now I see a proposal to increase it beyond the current $165 million to $177 million. Our community would be safer and healthier if you take action on the following recommendations:

- Increase the Public Defender budget dramatically to enable that office to provide holistic advocacy including increased social services, especially in North County. They also need funds for translation services and bi- or trilingual staff.
- Continue and expand diversion from jail to needed non-jail alternatives.
- Reduce the Sheriff's budget to below 2019-20 levels and reallocate funds not only within the criminal justice budget but into behavioral wellness, housing, and other social services that can address racial and economic inequities.
- Repurpose funds for renovation of the South County jail by limiting jail beds. Plan space for 200 instead of 1,000 beds. Provide space for transitional housing and a successful return to society. Free space for screening, diversion, emergency medical treatment, and services to restore health and well-being.
- Consolidate and expand data collection and analysis from multiple agencies to a central place.
- Increase transparency in how funds are allocated and spent. Track progress to ensure that all people in the County are treated humanely. Consider creating a Civilian Oversight Commission in line with state law.

This is not a complete list, but you may draw from the good work done by many community organizations and individuals as you shape a humane and efficient budget.

Appreciatively,

Dear Board of Supervisors:

I hope you are well in these challenging times! I'm writing to give comment on next year's budget. I am a Santa Barbara city resident, a UCSB staff member, and an immigrant. As I live downtown, I daily see how unjustly wealth and resources are distributed in our community, and how a lack of mental health resources create human suffering and, occasionally, unsafe interactions as I go about my day. Research has shown over and over again that increased policing is not the solution and, indeed, often makes things worse. I was also personally horrified to realize how impossible it is to find a shelter spot or resources: In an attempt to help a homeless community member, I called up every shelter. Most didn't pick up, and one said they had not had any available beds for a year.

As such, I urge you to consider the following for next year's budget:

- Reduce Sheriff's Office funding by a minimum of $26.7million and 165 FTE's this year in order to bring their office's budget in line with or below comparable counties.
- Instead, funnel the money to some or all of the following, all of which are the most effective ways to improve safety and human dignity in our community:
 - Healing Justice Santa Barbara's partnership with the Healing Center at UCSB's Hosford Clinic
 - Behavioral Wellness Department to provide non-jail alternatives for mental health and addiction needs
 - Affordable housing initiatives and shelters
 - Success Stories Program
 - Freedom to Choose
 - Other well established, highly effective grass-roots organizations such as El Centro, Freedom 4 Youth, CAUSE, Ethnic Studies Now!

Thank you for creating a safer, healthier community for all of us.

Yours,
Elina Salminen

Dear Supervisor Board of Supervisors,

As a resident of Santa Barbara County for the past seven years, I care deeply about my community and how the dollars that community members, like myself, put into this county, are spent. Money allocated by the Board of Supervisors should be used exclusively for the betterment of community; in ways that improve the health and safety of all our community members rather than over-funding institutions which have been proven to harm large sections of our community with their current practices.

Over-funding the prison system, for example, does nothing to create a safer community because incarceration does not address the root problems behind most "criminal" activity. Studies have shown that trauma and poverty are the two largest influences on "criminal" behavior and incarceration is an experience that is accompanied by socio-economic marginalization and only serves to further isolate those individuals from our community further, making it harder for us to help them to become productive members of our community. Rather than investing in programs and organizations which help people who have been traumatized by the prison system, $255million (68.3%) of the County's current public safety budget is invested into the supervision (Probation), prosecution (District Attorney), and policing and incarceration (Sheriff) of community members, all of which create additional trauma and reinforce cycles of poverty, thereby decreasing public safety.

In addition to the fact that incarceration is not an effective method for addressing "criminal activity", incarceration is also responsible for increasing racial inequities that exist in our community. SB County disproportionately incarcerates Black and Brown community members, who are already socio-economically marginalized through interconnected racist systems in our county related to housing, education, employment, healthcare, etc.

So, in order to better help all members of our community, regardless of race, mental health or income status, I urge the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors to make the following changes this for the 2021-2022 fiscal year:

1. Reduce Sheriff's Office funding by a minimum of $26.7million and 165 FTE's this year in order to support a consistent decline of average daily jail population and bring their office's budget in line with or below comparable counties.

Instead, invest this $26.7million in:

1. Community-based organizations and initiatives led by folks who have similar identities and life experiences to those who are most impacted by the criminal legal system in order to utilize alternatives to incarceration; true community-based diversion programs that are not affiliated with law enforcement or criminal legal institutions, and more practical and effective transitional services for individuals in custody. Examples of appropriate community-based allocations include funding for:

- Healing Justice Santa Barbara's partnership with the Healing Center at UCSB's Hosford Clinic which provides Black community members with free culturally competent and trauma informed professional mental health services.
 - Note: Changes to Sheriff practices such as being in plain clothes while on duty, as demonstrated by SBPD, are far from adequate when it comes to increasing mental health support for community members that are marginalized.
- Local organizations such as Healing Justice Santa Barbara, El Centro, Freedom 4 Youth, CAUSE, Ethnic Studies Now!, and many others who have been doing this work for many years while severely underfunded. These organizations provide services in the fields of mental health, education, employment, leadership, housing, clothing, food access, violence prevention, immigration, environmental protection, self-esteem and efficacy, arts & culture, etc...
- Success Stories Program which utilizes a dialogic approach to addressing the implications of patriarchy and toxic masculinity, as they repeatedly manifest in the objectification of womxn, the perceived need to show physical dominance or violence over others in order to be "more of a man", and the prioritization of money over healthy relationships. Local nonprofit Freedom 4 Youth has trained facilitators of this program.
- Freedom to Choose which supports individuals in the development of skills related to communication and relationships, fosters emotional intelligence, and dives into the root causes of impulsive, anger-driven, trauma-reactionary behaviors.

2. Affordable housing initiatives in order to accelerate the currently tenuous and sometimes impossible process of finding housing, which can take several years or force local residents to relocate due to cost of living. The lack of affordable and accessible housing for low-income residents disproportionately impacts Black and Brown community members, which increases the likelihood of involvement in the criminal legal system.

I would also like to support the implementation of the demands made by CLUE SB as stated below:

1. Increase funding for the Public Defender's Office to expand holistic advocacy and culturally competent staff to improve advocacy across the racial/ethnic spectrum.

2. Fund seed money to study a possible Civilian Oversight Commission to help assure transparency and accountability from the Sheriff's Office, alter the policing practices and procedures that reinforce trauma, and deter police misconduct.

- Possible results of this include the immediate stop to the Sheriff's cooperation with Immigration Customs Enforcement (ICE), deputy trainings on language justice best practices, and regularly required cultural competency and anti-racism trainings.

3. Reallocate more funds for the Behavioral Wellness Department to provide non-jail alternatives for mental health and addiction needs.

As I mentioned before, it's important that our community's money be spent towards what will create an inclusive and safe environment for all those who live in Santa Barbara County. So, I urge you to approve this change in budget as a show of respect for the values and needs of our fellow community members.

Thank you.

Dear County Supervisor,

I write to express my strong support to improve racial justice and prioritize humane treatment for justice-involved people in our County. I respectfully but firmly call on you to reallocate our criminal justice budget to advance transformational changes:

Permanently reduce Sheriff's Department funding to support a long term average jail population of approximately 550.

Reduce general funding for our Sheriff's Department by up to $26.7 million and 165 FTEs to bring our Sheriff Department budget in line with comparable counties.

Reduce Sheriff's Department funding for traditional policing that doesn't reduce recidivism. Reallocate funds to community-based diversion and alternatives to jail, including more funds for the Behavioral Wellness Department to provide non-jail alternatives for mental health and addiction needs. Reallocate funds to support transition planning for jail residents returning to our community.

Increase funding for the Public Defender Department to expand holistic advocacy and culturally competent staff to improve advocacy across the racial/ethnic spectrum.

Reallocate funds to County CEO to expand and centralize data collection and analytics. Require Departments to provide evidence-based data for programs to reduce recidivism.

Offer a grant to the Sheriff's Department to expand jail internet and volunteer access - - including the award winning Freedom to Choose program that reduces recidivism.

Rethink plans for $28M to refurbish the South County Jail. Reduce footprint to about 200 jail beds. Repurpose funds to build transitional housing to help stabilize eligible jail residents' re-entry into our community. Build a separate assessment center to screen and divert those who are appropriate for community-based alternatives.

Fund seed money to study a possible Civilian Oversight Commission to help assure Sheriff Department transparency and accountability, and deter police misconduct.

Transformational change requires courage. I will watch for you to vote for big change now. The commissioned KPMG studies and we, the people, will support you in this.

Sincerely,
Mary Becker

Public Comment
Special Issue: Jail Population, Diversion, and Collaborative Justice
Budget hearing 4/12/21

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to you today to rebut the letter from CLUE (Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice), The Fund for Santa Barbara, and their allies at CAUSE that seeks to reduce the budget of the sheriff's budget by some $28 million in order to divert these monies to various alternative treatment, sentencing and diversion practices and techniques.

It is a well-known fact that the sheriff budget is actually in need of enhancement, not cuts. Specifically, we don't have enough deputies on patrol throughout the county and the jail is certainly not overstaffed. Furthermore, it appears to be lost on CLUE that the county serves, processes and houses arrestees from all jurisdictions within the county and therefore any decision to cut the budget can and should only be made in consultation with city jurisdictions.

Furthermore, in light of AB109, Props 47 and 57, it is ridiculous to assume that our current legal system is too hard on criminals. The opposite is true. Our communities are not safe from career criminals, including gang members that are continuing to wage deadly warfare on our city streets.

Perhaps the most egregious oversight of CLUE's petition to cut the budget of the sheriff's dept lies in the fact that the original purpose of the sheriff's department is to respond to crimes by way of investigations, arrests and incarceration. The dept is not a social service agency. It is not a mental health agency. It does not offer rehabilitation services. Although all these services and functions are being thrust upon them.

Nonetheless, the county (read that taxpayers) is spending hundreds of millions of dollars on departments that do offer these other services to the mentally ill, homeless, people of color, the poor etc.. If CLUE wants more money and services allocated to the concept of social justice, then we urge the board to take the money from the probation, social services, alcohol, drug and mental health, and public health departments who employ more than double the number of employees in the sheriff's department.

CLUE contends that the sheriff's department budget is larger than that of other comparable counties. The report references no studies or data to support this claim. It is important to note that our Sheriff's budget is "inflated" if you will by virtue of the fact that the department contracts with Carpinteria, Buellton, Solvang, Goleta and the Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians.

CLUE asserts that the Public Defender's budget should be on par with that of the District Attorney's office. However, the truth of the matter is that the DA is responsible for prosecuting all criminal cases in the county, whereas, the PD is only responsible for defending indigents, while many other defendants are represented by their own attorneys not the PD. It is an apples and oranges comparison.

CLUE would have us believe that the current status of our criminal justice departments lock people up without regard to issues pertaining to "holistic treatment regimens" and the like. The truth is altogether different.

Do remember that the Board of Sups, not the sheriff, rejected the proposed STAR complex that Sheriff Brown sought to build. The supervisors voted to relinquish a state award that would have used $40 million to build what Brown had called the Sheriff's Treatment and Re-entry Complex, or STAR. The complex would have been separate from the main North County jail that is moving forward, and would have provided mental-health and treatment programs for inmates.

Moreover, since 2010 Brown has served as a Commissioner on the Mental Health Services Oversight and Accountability Commission for the State of California, and he leads Santa Barbara County's version of "Stepping Up," a National Initiative to Reduce the Number of Mentally Ill People in Jails. Sheriff Brown received the Santa Barbara County Rescue Mission's Léni Fé Bland Award, the Santa Barbara County Community Action Commission's Community Champion Award, the California Forensic Mental Health Association's Words to Deeds Paradigm Award, and their Christine M. West award for significant contributions to the field of forensic mental health, and he was selected as the California Peace Officers' Association's 2016 Sherman Block Law Enforcement Professional of the Year Award.

Finally, the clergy and lay people that lead CLUE should take a cue from successful religious reformers of the past. These people did not rely on the government to make things right in their communities and in the age they lived in. No, they raised the money and created the programs themselves to make a difference in the lives of the people they wanted to help. There is nothing stopping CLUE from ministering to the homeless, the mentally ill, and the poor among us right now.

Subject: Public Safety Budget Concerns

Dear County Supervisors,

My name is Jillian Ellis and I have lived in Santa Barbara County for 4 years. I am contacting you today regarding the public safety budget of our county. I'm aware that you recently declared racism a public health crisis in SB County. Given that the Black and Brown communities in our county are disproportionately incarcerated, impoverished, and marginalized, it is time for the Board of Supervisors to ensure that the budget reflects our values. I am speaking up today to advocate for a reduction in the county sheriff department's budget and an increase in investment in community-led programs, social services, and affordable housing. Prove to us that the resolution you passed to declare racism a public health crisis is more than just words.

I urge the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors to make the following changes this for the 2021-2022 fiscal year:

- 1.
2. Reduce
3. Sheriff's Office funding by a *minimum
4. of $26.7million and 165 FTE's this year in order
5. to support a consistent decline of average daily jail population and bring their office's budget in line with or below comparable counties.
