Program Consultant for Public-Private Partnerships

Rubayi Srivastava migrated from India in 1993 to pursue higher education in the United States. Her upbringing in an alternative education environment assisted in adapting to the cultural and social differences. She pursued a Bachelor's degree in Global Studies, with socio-political and economic emphasis, at the University of California, Santa Barbara; and continuing with her work on Conflict Management and Peace Science, she attained a Minor in Conflict Resolution in 2002, and later received a certification at the UN University in Amman, Jordan on Promoting Peace through Dialogue in 2008.

Rubayi completed her Masters in International Environmental Policy at the Monterey Institute of International Studies with a focus on program administration and evaluation for not-for-profits organizations. Throughout her career, she has worked in multiple sectors, most recently with the Open Health Systems, Laboratory, City of Goleta, and the Orfalea Foundation. She has developed a strong grasp on public policy and processes, strategic planning, budget and grant management, non-market valuation methods, and human resource management. Her unique strength lies in doing so for Public Private Partnerships for social good programs. The values she carries throughout her work are enhanced knowledge-share for sustainable processes, output-based decision making processes, and comprehensive resource and needs assessment; involving both policy-based and bottom up community-based planning for social good programs.

As a non-profit consultant, Rubayi focuses on Public Private Partnerships in program development and education projects. Rubayi sees projects from idea and inception to evaluation and redesign. Some of the recent assignments on disaster public education have allowed her to work at the grassroots level and simultaneously participate in regional dialogues on policy and collaboration, and exercise practices through development and evaluation of simulations and tabletop drills.

Rubayi presented her concept map on the "Science of Vulnerable Population Engagement for Disaster Preparedness" at the Fourth International Conference on Concept Mapping in 2010, Viña del Mar, Chile, 2010. Her research on Economic Returns on Early Childhood Development was published in The State of the World's Mother Report 2009 by Save the Children. Rubayi's poster on facilitation by the Open Health Systems Laboratory (OHSL) brought together resources in a lab in Bethesda, MD, bioinformatics capabilities at India's Center for Development of Advanced Computing (CDAC) and data from a researcher at the Tata Memorial Center in Mumbai, India. The poster "Indo-US Cancer Collaboratory: A VIVO Pilot" was presented at the second annual VIVO conference, held August 24 - 26, 2011 in Washington DC.

Her recent work includes development of an Operational Area-Wide Emergency Public Education & Awareness Campaign in Santa Barbara County, inclusive of an evaluation tool; strategic planning for Santa Barbara County Volunteer Organizations Active in Disasters (SBC-VOAD); and, research and analysis on developing evaluation methods to measure OXFAM International's impact on beneficiaries in through a Single Management Initiative (SMS).
